A STEWARDSHIP MOMENT

From the rich Eucharistic themes to be drawn from today’s second reading, one stewardship theme stands out: The Eucharistic is Christ’s gift to us. Good stewards are grateful for this gift and realize that no matter their station in life, they are welcome to come to the table and receive the body and blood of Christ. If Jesus could break bread with his betrayer, Judas, his denier, Peter, and the other ten who deserted him, then he will welcome us. Do we truly appreciate what a tremendous gift it is to approach the Lord’s table? Do we realize that the Holy Spirit means to transform us by the gift of Christ’s body and blood?

THE PASTORALS ON SUNDAY

A week-by-week resource from the Pastoral Letters of the Bishops of Rome, of the Second Vatican Council, and of the Bishops' Conference of the United States

THIRTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

1Kings 19:16, 19-21 Elisha left and followed Elijah as his attendant.
Galatians 5:1, 13-18 It is for liberty that Christ freed us.
Luke 9:51-62 Come away and proclaim the kingdom of God.

We find true freedom when we set our sights on God. Unencumbered by materialism, by consumerism, by nationalism and all the other "isms" which get in the way of our ministry of love and charity toward others, we can be truly responsive to God's word and call to the apostolate.

The virtue of patriotism means that as citizens we respect and honor our country, but our very love and loyalty make us examine carefully and regularly its role in world affairs, asking that it live up to its full potential as an agent of peace with justice for all people.

A gospel meditation for your home

June 23, 2019 – The Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ (Corpus Christi)

Luke 9:11-17

Last summer our family from near and far gathered at our home in Montana for my birthday. We were celebrating a major mile-marker, the one somewhere between sixty-five and eighty-one. You can guess which one. The central celebratory event was quite naturally a meal to which were invited family and a few friends. The actual meal was preceded by relaxing beverages and it culminated with a huge cake covered with flaming candles and the usual song. It would be hard to imagine such a gathering without food and drink. And mostly, of course, family.

Today's gospel recounts one of the many meals Jesus celebrated with his close friends and anyone who had interest in him – or he in them. This one was perhaps the largest, a cast of thousands. There are eleven communal meals described in Luke's gospel. His opponents (and he certainly had some) criticized him because he ate with known outsiders and sinners (according to their judgment). Even they knew the power of sharing food with others.

Some of these shared meals happened before his death and resurrection and some later. What's worthy of mention is that Jesus never ate alone in Luke's gospels – or in any of the other gospels. Shared meals were obviously important not only because life required food, but also because of their symbolic meaning. Sharing food symbolized sharing life. Nourishment came from the food and drink consumed, but even more importantly from eating and drinking together. And nourishment especially came from the sharing of lives that was part of the gathering.

This Sunday Catholics around the world celebrate the feast of the Body of Christ, formerly called Corpus Christi Sunday. In some countries the Eucharist is publicly carried in procession through the streets amid great festivity. Reverence for the Eucharist is at the center of Catholic life. In a real sense, the active presence of Jesus in the Christian community means that the presence of Christ continues in the life of the church today.

But there might be a problem. Because the Eucharist is so common in Catholic circles, people can grow used to it and relate to it without much thought. Things we do over and over again can slip into becoming routine, automatic, habitual. Like people we live with and see every day, we can take them for granted and hardly notice their presence or absence. Whenever Jesus comes to us in the Eucharist, I imagine that he is quite conscious of each of us. He is aware of our presence, our thoughts at that moment, the love in our hearts. Are we equally aware of him and the gift that he is to each of us?
